I think Auntie Lyndale's excellent post 694 answers most of the questions raised in your e-mail Irene and my personal opinion is that what is arrogance and what is haughty is relative from person to person.

So many Yogi's if not all

Not a single Yogi(including myself) in Malaysia has gone around announcing for the past 20 years and there are about a thousand of us if I am not mistaken.

I agree with you

Yes we should never pass judgement on others especially calling our brothers and sisters chicken. Jagbir should find ways and means how he can get them to reach his level so that they and we too can be as brave as he is.

A lot of people who are passionate about something and one in which they have dedicated their whole life will tend to get impatient with others whom they perceive as not doing enough or not doing it the right way. I personally will not blame either party.

I doubt Jagbir will ever be able to force me since he is on the other side of the globe but I do hope with his constant prodding I will step in the frontline in the near future.
