During the war years of 1941-1943, Suess served as editorial cartoonist for the New York newspaper "PM," and his patriotic "war bond" cartoons appeared in many other newspapers as well. Hundreds of high-quality scanned images from the original clippings can be viewed and printed easily. Although the subject matter here is hardly light-hearted, and some of the wartime ethnic stereotyping may be a bit disconcerting, you're sure to spot some familiar-looking felines and other remarkably Seussian creatures in unfamiliar settings.
