
ESCHATOLOGY: As the Great Conjunction of 7:25 ushers the promised Age

1 message

Jagbir Singh <s.jagbir@gmail.com>
To: Jagbir Singh <s.jagbir@gmail.com>

Mon, Dec 21, 2020 at 11:16 AM

As the Great Conjunction of 7:25 ushers the promised Age that has Co[vid-19]me, the living ask: “What is Death?” Astrologers are heralding this time of rebirth. They that hear the promised Paraclete shall live, period! (December 21, 2020)

“Prepare Yourself: A ‘Great Conjunction’ Is Coming

For astrologers, unsurprisingly, this is huge. Jupiter and Saturn are outer planets, meaning they move much more slowly across the clock face of the sky; as such, they’re believed to have influence on a grander scale — on society as a whole rather than on individuals. On top of that, the conjunction is taking place on the winter solstice, one of the most spiritually significant days of the year. It’s the longest night, meaning it marks the point at which days will finally start growing longer — a time associated with rebirth in all forms. “People are saying that this is the same alignment that happened when Jesus was born. I have been hoping for a second coming of Christ to polish off the end of the year, but living in the 21st century, I speculate this can look like an alien invasion,” says Berlin-based astrologer Randon Rosenbohm. “It’s always been an omen in astrology.”” The Cut

“What Time Do Jupiter and Saturn Align?

The last time Saturn and Jupiter, the largest planets in our solar system, orbited as closely as they will on Dec. 21 and were visible in the sky, the year was 1226.

Almost 800 years later, on Monday, these titanic orbs will once again appear in the heavens just one-tenth of a degree apart — about the thickness of a dime held at arm’s length, according to NASA.

Astrophiles of all stripes are excited, to say the least. Astronomers and other sky watchers could witness a once-in-a-lifetime event. Astrologers are heralding it as a time of rebirth. (The conjunction falls on the winter solstice.) And holiday aficionados are calling this bright conjunction, happening so close to Christmas Day, the “Christmas star.”” New York Times

“The Great Conjunction Is Almost Here, & It Will Change Everything

“When these two planets come together, outdated social forms and ways die in order to give birth to new ones,” Montúfar explains. The Great Conjunction has shaped historical trends and eras, and usually marks a time of immense change, she says.” Elizabeth Gulino

“The Great Conjunction On December 21 Marks The Start Of A New-Age Renaissance

Now that you’ve survived eclipse season and are ready to put 2020 behind you, it’s time to talk about one of the last major astrological and astronomical events of the year: the Great Conjunction on December 21. The Great Conjunction occurs every 20 years and refers to the two huge gas planets (Saturn and Jupiter) aligning in the heavens. Many mark this very special meeting in the sky as the beginning of the Age of Aquarius. Are you ready?

First, let’s break it down. What’s so special about the Great Conjunction, anyway? Although Jupiter and Saturn align every 20 years or so, we can’t always see their meeting from earth due to their positioning and the timing of the conjunction in the sky. That was the case when it happened last, back in 2000—but this year, the planets will be bright and visible.

Because of how close the date of this year's Great Conjunction is to Christmas day, many are comparing it to the Christmas Star that Catholics believe heralded the birth of Jesus. Also, when the Great Conjunction occurred in 1405, it symbolized the end of Europe's Dark Ages and the beginning of the Renaissance. Considering 2020 has been pretty damn dark, this can only mean good things for us going forward. For these reasons, astronomers and astrologers alike are excited about December 21, 2020 and will be watching for this major event to occur right below the crescent moon that night." Shereen Campbell

"The Biggest Astrological Event of Our Lifetime Arrives on December 21

A Great Conjunction represents a time for you to release old habits in order to make way for new ways of doing things. If you aren't open to change, it can feel uncomfortable. But if you are, you can make incredible progress toward dreams you've held onto for a long time. The expansive nature of Jupiter and the structure of Saturn team up to help you accomplish something that may have felt like a reach before but is now totally within your grasp." Amelia Quint

December 21, 2020

HALF THE SKY was set up on this summer solstice June 21, 2020. Today is the first day of the winter solstice and with Christmas around the corner, there is much excitement and speculation about its significance. Astrologers are heralding that the Christmas Star of December 21, 2020 — appearing after nearly 800 years — is a time of rebirth.

I sat for the last few hours checking the facts surrounding the great expectations of astrologers and astronomers of this 2020 winter solstice. You can feel some desperation, even exasperation about the promised return. "People are saying that this is the same alignment that happened when Jesus was born. I have been hoping for a second coming of Christ to polish off the end of the year."

There is something about today's Great Conjunction that marks the first Christmas of HALF THE SKY. The arrival of the Paraclete Shri Mataji in 1923 set in motion celestial events and signs that must be witnessed precisely as prophesied in the holy scriptures. I will need a few weeks to collate that evidence.

(..... To be continued)