Hurdles on the road to peace

While Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Barak promised simultaneous peace talks on all outstanding issues of Middle East peace, deep differences must be resolved before an overall settlement can be made.

THE QUESTION OF PALESTINE

Slow train to peace

The peace process between the two peoples who inhabit present-day Israel and the occupied territories is years behind schedule and still faces seemingly insuperable differences.

SYRIA AND ISRAEL: ARCH ENEMIES

Waiting for the thaw

A peace deal between Syria and Israel seems tantalisingly close after many years of wrangling over the future of the Golan Heights, Syria's strategic plateau which Israel seized in the 1967 war.

LEBANON: LAST BATTLEFRONT

End of War?

Israel is committed to ending its long occupation of southern Lebanon by July, but what will the impact be for regional stability if Mr Barak's promised withdrawal is not effected with Syria's blessing?

ISRAEL'S CHOICES

The price of peace

For Israel the peace process has invariably meant giving up territory, territory for the most part won in the dramatic victory over the Arabs in the Six Day War of 1967.
